O'Delia Sticks to the Fable About Lola Montez.

Her Story, However, Differs from What She Said in the Tombe-The Tombs Testimony She Admits Was False, Because She Had Not Given It Under Oath-George Francis Train Brings More Bouquets to Court.

In anticipation of a grand pyrotechnic exhibition there was a gathering of more than a court-room full to hear the cross-examination of Mme. Diss Debar in Judge Gildersleeve's part of the Court of General Sessions to-day. The Spiritualists were out in force, and a score of ladies were present.

Citizen George Francis Train, with a box of bouquets for the Judge and the reporters, was there, and anticipation was on tiptoe. An Evening World reporter asked one of the faithful, "How can you stand by madame when her fraud has been so clearly demonstrated?" To which this answer was

"Those not conversant with Spiritualistic philosophy make a great mistake. We know -have known for a long time-that this woman was deceitful. But she is in the control of bad spirits. The 'diakkas' are to biame for her deceits. She cannot control their action, and is a medium against her own volition."

Citizen Train sent a bouquet to the Assistant District-Attorney, and when he was told that his name was Dayis he exclaimed: "Good gracious! Any relation to Judge Noah Davis? He's the man who locked me

A nosegay to madame was accompanied by a card inscribed: "Psycho regards to Citoyenne Diss Debar."

Madame graciously smiled and bowed her acknowledgments, kissing the bouquet and waving it dramatically at the sage.

The fireworks began at 11.15 o'clock, Vernon H. Davis, the cool, calm, firm, always gentlemanly young prosecutor, cross-examining the oracular Princess, whose resemblance to George and Alice Salowon is strikingly brought out in her rile as witness.

A spectator said: "Alice has more intellect than George and Ann O'Delia together. Ann O'Delia has more education and worldly shrewdness than the other two, and George is the natural plant. Their tongues, tempers and general features are very much alike."

Mr. Davis asked Misiress Oracle where were the letters written by Artist Bierstadt.

"It would be impossible for me to say," she replied. "While I was yet a prisoner in the Tombs Mr. Marsh sent me a request to remove my effects from his house. This involved the paper on the wall and the paint itself.

Madame said she would not produce those letters. for reasons of her own—the best of reasons—but would not tell those reasons.

A question arose which madame didn't want to answer and she argued the legal point. Judge Gilderaleeve counselled her to let her lawyer look after her rights.

Whereupon madame pointed her fan at Senator Boyd and in an austere tone jerked out. "Will you attend to your business, sir?"

There was a breadth fullness, unctuousness, in madame's enunciation familiar to those who have heard elecutionists and cheap actors. She said: "I was born, I have been told, in Florence, Italy. Me mother was Lola Montez."

Marie Wainwright, in a black beaded gown and an olive-green bonnet, was among the spectators. Chauncey Kerr and the actress compared notes of the trial on a settee in one corner of the room.

It was brought out that madame had dodged the question, when she testified in the police court, that she never received any money from Marsh. She admitted to-day that Marsh gave her several checks.

Madame, more astute than her "General," would not admit that she and he were ever married. She knew that his marriage to her would be bigamous. But she insisted that in the highest sense they were man and wife, and that she was morally perfect as wife, mother, woman and Christian.

She pronounced the family record written in the old, dog-eared, discolored, moth-eaten Salomon family Bible a forgery, and with this magnificent culmination of his cross-examination Mr. Davis surrendered the fair O'Delia to Senator Boyd.

Judge Gildersieeve asked: "You have produced as a medium seventy-five paintings for Mr. Marsh. Did it ever occur to you that some slight manifestation of this Spiritualistic power in the presence of the jury would almost surely convince them of your innocence?"

Madame replied: "Yes, Your Honor. But I cannot control the spirits. I know not how my power comes, nor when. Should I at any time feel the slightest latent power, I should immediately make my utmost endeavors to manifest it.

Barrett and a jury in the Court of Oyer and Terminer at 11 o'clock this forenoon. Dunn is a lawyer by profession and was in dicted jointly with Charles S. Scott, formerly paping teller of the Bank of the Manhattan company, who stole $150,000 from the bank June 1, 1885, and skipped to Canada. In September of that year he went to England. where he met Dunn. Scott recently made a confession to Consul.

General Waller, in England, in which he stated that he speculated with the bank's money previous to leaving New York and lost $10,000. He could not replace it, and vent to Dunn, a cousin of his wife, for advice. He says Dunn told him to take all the money he could get his hands on and go to Canada. After some hesitation and a great deal of persuasion from Dunn, Scott took $150,000 from the bank and gave $140,000 to Dunn for safekeeping. He also says he has not seen any of the money since.

Scott testified that he gave $10,000 of the stolen money to Mrs. A. L. Roberts. He got the money out of his hands so that he could not be extradited for taking stolen money into not be extradited for taking stolen money, into Canada.

Dunn was seated at the end of a table occupied by his counsel, Charles Brooke and Silas M. Stillwell. He appeared somewhat embarrassed and nervous, and seldom took his eyes from a copy of a newspaper which he held in his hand, except when some very important testimony was elicited.

Charles S. Scott was recalled and identified it as a letter addressed to him previous to the letter of Jan. 25. 1887, by John R. Dunn.

The letter was read by Assistant District-Attorney Parker. It stated that the writer was in terrible distress of mind and that he had speculated with the money left with him with the expectation that he would make money enough to settle Scott's trouble with the bank, and had lost all.

He wrote that he felt like blowing his brains out and feared that he would become insane. The witness said that he sent the letter to his wife.

Mr. Brooke then commenced cross-examining the witness, who said that he entered into the employ of the bank when nineteen years old, at a salary of $300, and received presents which swelled it to $700 or $600. He then testified to his advancement from one position to another until he became paying teller at a salary of $3,000 and received a bonus in addition.

His salary was subsequently advanced to one position to another until be became paying teller at a salary of $3,000 and received a bonus in addition.

His salary was subsequently advanced to $4,000, with no bonus. When he left New York he was living at 3 East Forty-seventh street. He had bought and sold securities since he was twenty-five years old, when he was receiving $1,600 or $1,700 a year.

He received a stated salary of $1,000 or $1 200 a year, and the bonus sometimes twice a year. He received $1,500 or $2,000 from his father's estate when twenty-one years old.

In a purchase of Louisville and Nashville stock of 1884, bought on a margin, witness paid $500, which he took from the bank, and acknowledged that he pilfered it. He made a false ticket that night to make it appear that the cash balanced. That was the first time he stole money from the bank.

He did it afterwards several times. The largest sum he took previous to his last their was $2,000. The money was stolen each time during banking hours. When he took money from the vault ticket.

Scott said he made tickets representing that there was more money in the bank vault than really was deposited there. He did not that there was more money in the bank wall than really was deposited there. He did not know that by so doing he was committing forgery.

His thefts covered a period of eighteen months. A committee of directors made examinations of the bank's affairs.

President Hayes and Vice-President Kennedy also made examinations. The witness knew the examinations were coming and covered up the deficiencies. He directed checks charged twice to mislead the examiners. He did this three or four times.

He knew that the entries were false. To straighten the accounts he would not credit other checks of like amount when they came in. Witness and cashier had access to the vault. He was at liberty to take money whenever it was necessary in transacting business.

Nellie Cole was living quietly with Fannie Roberts. He next met the Roberts woman on Forty-fifth street. He met her in her bedroem. He called there once or twice a week afterwards during the summer, sometimes at night, sometimes in the afternoon.

She left there in the fall, She paid $15 a week for her board.

The witness said he did not pay her board, at least not directly. She moved to Forty-first street and he called on her regularly until after Jan. 1. He met her in her bedroom there.

His visits to the Roberts woman covered a period of about a year. He frequently spent Sundays with her. O'Brien was accused by Inspector Williams with making a false report of the rescue of Mrs. Ann Doolan from a burning building in Madison street.

Inspector Williams testified that on instructions from Supt. Murray he made an investigation, examining the witnesses to the fire, and found that at no time was the life of Sergt. O'Brien or any of the inmates of the burning building at 256 Madison street, in peril. The report of O'Brien to the Superintendent was read in which he reiterated the statement that he rescued Mrs. Doolan, who was in great veril, and in doing so be burned his hands. Mrs. Doolan swore that there was no fire, water or smoke in her room at any time.

Frank Finkelstein, a Russian tenant, said he swoke all the tenants, and there was fire and smoke in the hallway. He had no trouble in getting to the street by the stairway, on which there was no fire.

Mrs. Lavele, the housekeeper, resided on the second floor, and swore that the smoke reached that floor. Three rooms were burned, but only two feet of casing was burned in the hallway. There were twenty femilies and fully one hundred people in the house at the time of the fire.

Sergt, O'Brien testified that he saw a fire and ran to the building. He hastened upstairs and found Mrs. Doolan trying to enter the burning room to get an insurance book and aided by Barry and Power he carried her downstairs and burned his finger in taking her out the building.

He made the report of the rescue, not to ceive an honorable mention, but because he was ordered to do so by Capt. Garland.

Roundsman Barry said when he and Officer Powell appeared, Mrs. Doolan was clinging to the baluster and Sergt. O'Brien ordered them to take her down stairs at once and they did so. The woman was ten feet from the fire, and there was no flame in the hallway.

In reply to a question by Commissioner French O'Brien said that he was very much excited when he made the statement at the station-house. He really believed the woman would have been burned to death if he had not rescued her, but he could not say that anything was burned where he found her. The case was closed.

NOT BRIDGES, BUT TUNNELS.

the Park Board Decides There Shall B No More Bridges Over the Harlem.

There will be no more bridges, either draw r high span, built across the Harlem River. That point was definitely settled this morning by the Park Board in adopting the report of the committee of engineers appointed some time ago to investigate the subject.

The committee consisted of Edgar B. Van Winkle, Thomas C, Clarke, George W. Mc-Nulty and Gen. John Newton. It was requested to report as to the relative merits and advantages of draw bridges, high-span bridges or tunnels as a means of communication across the Harlem, and particularly as to the best substitute for the present McComb's Dam Bridge. The report strongly favored tunnels. The committee estimated that the total cost of a tunnel at Seventh avanue would not exceed $2,000,000.

Park Commissioners Robb and Towle wanted the report adopted. They said that they had given much attention to the subject, and fully agreed with the report of the engineers. The report was adopted.

Landscape Architect Dwight Olmstead reported that the work on Morningside Park was being badly done. The Board informed him that this fact had already been discovered and a new foreman put in charge.

EMBEZZLEMENT AND SUICIDE. A Defaulting Collector, in Fear of Exposure,

Blows Out His Brains. Edward Bernhardt, forty years of age, 497 Perry street, Newark, was found last evenng, with his back resting against a tree, on the old Bloomfield road, and a bullet through his brain. By his side was a 32-calibre revolver, with which he had taken his own life. Bernhardt was employed as a collector for F. and M. Schaefer, the brewers, of Fifty. first street and Fourth avenue, New York, and late last night the fact was developed that he had embezzled $4,000 of the firm's money It was probably, fear of exposure that led him to suicide. A bunch of daisies was found in his lap, with this letter:

MY DEAR Wires: Despair drives me to death. The last three days were terrible for me. Those flowers I plucked on the same wayside along which we walked on a Sun ay, and I am not able to write any more. Tell my poor, miserable mother and air my aisters, relatives and friends. Again farewell, farewell. Thise, EDDIE.

Bernhardt was connected with a number of local German organizations, and has many warm friends both in Newark and New York. WAS IT ACCIDENT? Inwrence Sheridan's Body Found Unde His Window This Morning.

Lawrence Sheridan, a native of Ireland, thirty-eight years of age, was sitting in the window of his room on the fifth floor of the house No. 549 West Forty-fifth street, shortly pefore 12 o'clock last night. At 12.15 o'clock Joseph McCahill, James Behan and Anne Sheridan, all of 549 West Forty-fifth, hearing a fall in the yard under their rooms, went down to ascertain the cause and found the body of Sheridan lying on the ground.

The case was not reported to the police for nearly an hour afterward, when Officer Crow-ley, of the Forty-ninth street station, got wind of it.

It is not yet fully ascertained whether the fall was accidental or whether Sheridan was thrown from the windows.

Though the police incline to the former view, a thorough investigation is being made.

GEN. SHERIDAN A LITTLE BETTER.

He Slept More than Usual Last Night and His Appearance Is More Satisfactory.

PETECIAL TO THE WORLD.1 WASHINGTON, June 13-9 a. m. bulletin. Gen. Sheridan slept more than usual last night. Towards morning he had an attack of coughing, followed by a short period of general depression, from which he recovered quickly and easily. At present his appetite is sufficient, pulse 100 and 102, respiration 27 and regular, temperature normal. His ap-pearance is better.

A Massive Corner-Stone. One of the largest blocks of stone ever seen in hese parts was hauled up Myrtle avenue last evening and deposited on the grounds of St. John's College. It weighs some seven tons, and is to be the corner-stone of the great church which Father Hartnett is about to erect.

The stone will be laid by the venerable Bishop Loughlin, on Sunday afternoon, June 24, and the occasion will be made memorable by the largest outpouring of Catholies that ever assisted at a similar ceremony in this city. A choir of some eight hundred children are to be in attendance to sing the beautiful hymns of the Catholie church, and the clergy of the diocese will render the pealins in the solemn and impressive Gregorian. ing and deposited on the grounds of St. John's

The body of John Otto Hundt, of 167 East Eightyfirst street, this city, will be cremated at Frest Pond, L. I., this afternoon. He was President of the State Executive of the Personal Liberty Lesgue and tax served in the army during the Mexican war. He was one of the founders of the Arion Ciub.

Mr. Hundt's funeral levices took place to-day in the large hall in the Arion Ciub house, Fifty-ninth street and Park avenue. The stage was decorated with plants and flowers and the casket was covered with foral offerings. There was music by Prof. Lebold's orchestra, singing by a large chorus and addresses by Dr. Senner and Ashbel P. Fitch.

BLAINE OR BUST

Growing Feeling that He Is the Man.

Elkins Says the Maine Knight Will Be Nominated.

Kansas Will Whoop It Up for Him at Chicago.

Maine and Massachusetts Are Falling Into Line.

SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.1 KANSAS CITY. June 13. - The publication of Steve Elkins's letter to Sam Scott, of this city, saying that Blaine would be the nominee of the Convention, is the political sensation of the hour.

The Blaine Knights, another strong orga zation, has engaged a special train for the ame evening. The feeling to day is running very high. Elkins is pulling the wires with a strong hand

A Blaine club 400 strong has been organ ized and will leave for Chicago Sunday, in this section of the country. Here is the significant letter from Steve Elkins, Blaine's lieutenant, which seems likely to be like a match applied to a gunpowder magazine. It was written after the Paris declination :

"Blaine has a majority of the delegates to Chicago. HE WILL BE NOMINATED. He seill be the next President. B. B. ELEINE."

BOSTON, June 13.—To-day an Evening. Works reporter met Jesse Gove, "the origi-nal Blaine man" from Massachusetts. in the City Hall. He was getting ready to depart with the Republican delegation for Chicago to-morrow evening. "Who is going to be nominated, Alderman?" asked the reporter.

PORTLAND, Me., June 18.—The first men tion of James G. Blaine's name in the Republican Convention here yesterday by Judge Wisewell, the Chairman, caused the wildest excitement among the delegates. Hats were thrown high in air and the voice of the speaker was drowned in the enthusiastic shouts of the admirers of the Plumed Blaine's hand appeared in the selection of Joe Manley has worked for months to secure the nomination of Burleigh, and his victory yesterday presages an overwhelming Blaine entiment in the Maine delegation to the Chicago Convention. Blaine certainly desires one of his faithful aides as a candidate for Governor, and Joe Manley's action in booming Burleigh is not without significance. The feeling here this morning among the Republicans is enthusiastic for the selection of their favorite son as the standard-bearer of the Republicans, and they are of the opinon that notwithstanding his repeated declinations he will accept the nomination.

if Joe Manley has anything to say in the POLITICIANS THINK IT IS BLAINE.

Maine will look out that it is tendered him,

Elkins's Letter the Match Which Has Stapted the Confingration. The extraordinary letter of Steve Elkins showing that Blaine is still his leading candidate, despite all letters of denial from

Florence and Paris, has created a sensation in local Republican circles. It is an undoubted fact that the leading Republicans of this State and city, and especially those who will, as delegates, have a say in the nomination of a Republican candi-date for the Presidency, are strong in their Blaine tendencies.

It is remembered that only strong Blaine men, such as Mr. Depew and Wm. Walter Phelps, are spoken of as candidates for Mr.

Blaine's shoes by the shouters of the magnetic man from Maine.

Mr. Eikins's little tip has already had its effect. The Blame men who really believed that their Plumed Knight was not entered for the tournament are again enthusing.
